UNMANAGEABLE CHILDREN.

BY CELIA.

"Oh! dear, dear! That child will be the death of me! I can do nothing with him, and his father has no control over him," and the poor woman sighed, and turning to her work spent the remainder of the afternoon fretting and repining at Providence, which had placed her in the midst of such trying circumstances. The "child," whose conduct had occasioned this outburst, was a fair counterpart of his mother in complexion and phrenological developments; but, aside from the aid of science, the most casual observer would at once detect the resemblance and relationship of the two. "Fred" in the mother had taken the rather more definite form of "Eight," in the child; hence the constant skirmishes, word and hand altercations, between his impulsive offspring and his playmates, which always ended in more or less interference on her part in his behalf; at all events, she was made the repository of all the complaints he chose to make of his school, teacher, lesson, neighbors and all. He certainly was not a prepossessing child at first sight. His complexion was florid, freckled, hair red and clear brown eyes which are usually found with the effeminate, premature and hardened; his expression of the cringing, yet determined type which we understand but cannot define. As a pupil he was attentive to his duties in school, scurrying to scorn the smaller infringements of the rules, and only awaiting some great occasion for an exhibition of his powers which should excite the admiration of all around him. Hence, while a model schoolboy in school, he would steal, lie, or break any keepsake he could get hold of, which he knew was particularly prized by another.

The result of a course like this may be anticipated. He soon reached the Reform School. The mother, instead of inquiring the cause of this early development of such traits (for he was then only ten years old) to find, if might be, her own or her child's deficiency, only exhausted her "small stock of patience" the more by mounting her "unhappy lot." She did not realize, or admit, if recognized, her share of the blame and responsibility of his misconduct,—that the tendencies were in direct descent from her, and hers alone was the hand that should save him from himself; to train, to guide, and not to exasperate or subdue the passions inherent. Not this! But she sent him fully prepared to enter the school for hardened criminals! The impetus to his downward progress was given at birth—ay, even before—momentum was sustained and augmented by daily home treatment. A staggering blow on his head from the hand of his father was all the response to any appeal for sympathy, until the boy grew to whom him completely; peevishness and indulgence through indulgence, was the mother's method; was it not well that the child was thus early removed from their influence?

Five years roll away and where do we find the "child"? A child no longer in heart, if indeed he ever had a child's experience. He has not been "the death of his mother," for she lives, a fine specimen of the law of "perpetual motion" in respect to flogging and fuming over evils great and small; that other are the phosphorescent lights and odor of her own imperfections, the emanations of her own untaught, untrained spirit.

At the age of fifteen he enlisted as private in the company then forming in his native town; and soon, so prompt, so cheerful almost to recklessness, as Sammy, our graduate of the Reform School. His daring bravery was the admiration of the privates and officers, as far as displayed in the drill, (excepting and picked duty) he seemed dissatisfied with any undertaking that did not hazard life. In less than one year, his experience comprised five battles, and in the last before Richmond he was shot through the ankle, but remained on the field until all his company had retired, and then returned to his tent to find his shoe filled with blood. He at once became his own surgeon, administering the proper remedies, refusing hospital aid and shelter, and stands to-night leaning on a cane, a volunteer by stratagem, or picket duty. His conduct has attracted the attention of his superiors and promotion has been the result.

Fifteen years and nine months have passed over his head, and this is his history. We see the spirit pervading his whole life to be one and the same. Men called him brave thus to suffer for his country, bold that we should hesitate to credit him any and every holy impulse possible; but reason and analogy teach us that combative and "tigly temper" of childhood was the propelling and strengthening force of manhood and the secret of his success; that his mind has found its true sphere and his faculties sustained a vigorous, normal action. It may be asked, "Was his life then a failure, after all?" If his own happiness were secured, nerve and muscle, of so great importance to our country in her present struggle, were thus secured to her service, where is the harm? Has he not shown for youthful indiscretions? Are not his powers directed into the right channel, at least? All true. But have we nothing more to gain by this contest? If not, then the terrible sights of the ancient amphitheatre were more令人惊悚, pleasing spectacles.

CURE FOR PIN WORMS.

DR. E. G. GOULD'S PIN WORM SYRUP.

In the first and only remedy ever offered to the public for the removal of the Ascarides, or Pin Worms, from the human system. The high reputation it has established in the last two years, and the fact it is fast superseding all other worm remedies, is equally interesting, and the result of its use.

It is also a most valuable remedy for children, who are always most liable to pin worms.

It cures the scrofulous, gives tone and inspiration, but the pin-worms have been the bane of the soul, "which burns?" From this train of reasoning, conclusion is logically deduced, that so far as principle, right and wrong are concerned, Sammy would labor as earnestly for religious against constitutional law as for his adherents; we say for rebels—known rebels, for he had but possessed a quick moral sense, he would have been an invaluable member of the "Home Guard," as his instinct and valor would readily discover traitors in contractors, on "Change," and in them that grind the faces of the poor, and deprive existing appointed authority with exemption in their legs or consciences. If the tide of affairs turn in favor of the former, he would readily desert his post, for the latter, whether of a thought or a nation's desire, is safe in his hands; he can elevate, refine and energize all by the heaven-born magnetism of a lofty mind.

But a man, possessing only the former and not the latter, is such as the world may well fear; the greatest tyrant the veriest emissary of Satan sent to scourge the earth by his presence; an influence to which teach itself, but for its inherent energies and immorality, would succumb—to the sway of an uneducated, indomitable will. We see, then, that our little soldier's fault lay not in following the inclinations given by his early instruction, or rather non-instruction; but that the blame was chargeable to parents, home and its influences. A quickened moral sense with this "steamer" would have made a loftier type of manhood the birth—ay, even before—momentum was sustained and augmented by daily home treatment. A staggering blow on his head from the hand of his father was all the response to any appeal for sympathy, until the boy grew to whom him completely; peevishness and indulgence through indulgence, was the mother's method; was it not well that the child was thus early removed from their influence?

In Southern Independence we should not gain Power.

There can be no doubt that peace is to be depended on every account, that we all agree that it ought to be secured at the earliest possible moment; yet, it is a proud thought that there are but a few north of Mason and Dixon's line who are so even-hearted as to be willing that peace should be established upon a single conceded Northern right, or indeed upon any disgraceful and impracticable compromise whatever. But if any suppose for a moment, that even peace could have been, or could now be secured by an acknowledgement of the Southern Confederacy, and by allowing our "wayward sisters" to depart in peace, such are greatly mistaken. Suppose, for argument, that we had adopted a passive policy in the first place, as many then counselled, and have allowed them to go and try the experiment of a separate government, what would have been the clearly probable results.

In looking at this aspect of the subject, Mr. Stille very properly looks to the analogy presented in the records of the history of other nations, under somewhat similar positions, as the best basis of a judgement in relation to the probable future of two separate Nationalities created upon what was the united territory of the old American Union.

He says, "if we look at the history of modern Europe, and seek for one word to define the character of the wars which have desolated the continent for the last century and a half, we may most properly call them wars for a frontier. All the passions which have driven men to war in the old world, find at last their expression in the desire to obtain a good frontier, a safe protection against the ambition of their neighbors."

These views are fortified by historical references. Such were the wars of the Prince of Orange against the Low Countries, to secure for his native country a barrier against the power of France. Such were the campaigns of Marlborough, to protect the dominion of the Emperor of Germany in Belgium, against the same power. Such was Frederick the Great's seizure of Silesia, to secure the frontier of Prussia against Austria and Russia. "What," he asks, "in more modern times, was the grand object of the early wars of the French Revolution, but to obtain what they call their natural frontiers, the Rhine, the Alps and Pyrenees? What was Napoleon his first addition, but his obstinate refusal to give up this very boundary? What in our own day, has lost Lombardy to Austria, but her persistence in interfering in the Italian Duchies, with a view of rendering her frontier safe against Sardinia? and what has been the result of the war which grew out of these pretensions, but to make the French dream of a frontier of the maritime Alps a reality?" Our author, after stating that the matter of a frontier, would appear to be one that, more than any other, would be settled among the old monarchies of Europe, and of the suggestive significance of the fortresses which are seen to line every frontier on the continent of Europe, adds these words: "While they tell of religion, menaced, of independence preserved, of ambition curbed, they are also enduring monuments of a truth which lies deep in human history—that no nation has ever been willing to trust its safety to the influence of those sentiments of good will and mutual respect which are supposed to arise from free commercial intercourse and identity of material interests, but has felt secure only when girded about with the strongest physical barriers against the violence of human passions."

The teachings of history and experience, therefore, we thus plainly perceive, pronounce that a disputed frontier, would render the permanent establishment of two governments out of the United States entirely impracticable, and with far less chance for practicability and peace than exist in regard to the boundaries of the governments of the Old World.

Another very probable evil arising from the neighborhood of two nations, bordering with old animosities and existing in the midst of daily occurring fresh ones, would be the facilities thus afforded for any ambitious military general or even a foreign power, when disposed, to seize upon some pretext for embroiling the two nations in a war for selfish ends.

Look at this subject then, in whatever light we may, we are forced to the conclusion that a nationality having in its scope the whole territory of this country is a necessity, and one that admits of no difference of opinion. An American instinct. So thought our fathers and the instinctive wants of their visions included even the whole continent. Mr. Stille says, "it is not generally known, but it is a fact now well founded for, that at the first meeting of the Commissioners in Paris, to settle upon the terms of the Treaty of 1783, Dr. Franklin proposed that England should cede the whole of Canada to the United States, with a view, as he said, of preventing the possibility of any future disputes between rival powers on this continent."

With these considerations before us, how Utopian is any scheme for peace, but the unconditional surrender of the rebels now in arms against the Federal Government, and their unconditional submission thereto. Any one who calculates upon any other ground of ending this war is either a traitor or a mad man.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—To-morrow, will be the feast of Ireland's Saint. There will be a solemn High Mass at St. Mary's Church at 10 o'clock.—In the evening at 7 o'clock, Rt. Rev. Bishop McFarland will deliver a panegyric on St. Patrick. St. Mary's Catholic Benevolent and St. Aloysius Societies will turn out on the occasion, accompanied by the Naval Academy band. The processions will form at the church at 9 o'clock, and move through Spring st. to Pelham, up Pelham to Tuxedo, down Tuxedo to Kay, through Kay to Bellown Hill to Broad, down Broad through Paradise Avenue, along Thunes to Dearborn, up Dearborn to Spring, and from there to the church. The processions above named have recently been formed in connection with the Parish of St. Mary in this city. The objects of these societies are highly commendable, and credit is due to the indefatigable exertions of the Parish clergymen and others who have so successfully organized them. The object of St. Mary's Catholic Benevolent Society, as stated in the preamble to their constitution, is for social and intellectual improvement; and the mutual aid of one another in sickness and distress. The object of the society of St. Aloysius is the spiritual and intellectual improvement of the younger portion of the members of the Parish. We wish them both a good measure of success in view of their desirable objects as set forth in their forms of organization.

ANOTHER WRECK.—Messrs. T. & J. Coggeshall agents for the Underwriters, have got in charge another wreck which came in yesterday, and no less than the N. E. Commercial wharf. This is a Dutch bark Tunica, Capt. Brabant, bearing from New York to Rotterdam, laden with Petroleum oil. On the first night out of New York, she was run into by the ship Isaac Webb of New York. She was badly stove, with the loss of her mizzen-mast, stays, &c. The captain believing her to be in a sinking condition abandoned her and went on board the pilot-boat Mary E. Fitch of New York, which was then in sight. Afterwards she returned with the pilot on board his own vessel, and was towed into our harbor by the pilot-boat. The latter will claim salvage.

The schooner Carthagena has been lighted of almost all her cargo, which may be considered a very fortunate thing considering the season of the year and the situation of the vessel. After all the cargo is out, the work of getting the vessel afloat and bringing her in, will be let out to some person by the job.

The Tarzel, on shore near Beaver Tail Light, will probably not be got off as she is, but sold as she stands for what she will bring at auction. Our enterprising townsmen, the Messrs. Coggeshall have left nothing undone to save the wreck in as good condition as possible.

ADOPTED CITIZENS' MEETING.—The Adopted Citizens of this State pursuant to a previous call hold a State Convention to-day in Providence, to nominate a ticket for general officers, and to elect an executive committee &c. The Convention meets in the Court of Magistrate's Room. If they run a separate ticket it will make four tickets, though we imagine not four "Richmonds" in the little political field of Rhode Island. There's hardly room in a ten acre lot for so many dignitaries—but plenty of room for them to "to turn about in"—yea, even for a regular Jim Crow turn about. There is nothing that can beat a regular political candidate for that except the Ravel, and it's a ravel even between them.

SUNDAY SERVICES.—Rev. Mr. Robbins, Associate Pastor of the Central Baptist Church, with the late Dr. Jackson, preached a very appropriate, affecting and eloquent funeral discourse at that church yesterday afternoon from the text, "And Enoch walked with God, and was not, for God took him." It was a review of the character of the deceased Pastor, his former Principal, under the direction of a man, a Christian and a pastor, and his subject could have been so accurately analyzed by one who knew him intimately and well.

Rev. M. D. Conway preached to a large congregation yesterday morning at the Rev. Mr. Brooks' church.

A NEW HOTEL.—Mr. J. B. Carter has removed from the Pelham Street House, and taken the house No. 10 Broad street, which he has opened as a hotel, under the name of the American Hotel. Mr. Carter is a pleasant landlord, and a straight forward man in all his business dealings. His table is always filled with the delicacies of the season, and those who try him once will ever after know where to find the "inner man."

DEATH OF A NEWPORT DESCENDANT.—The National Intelligencer announces the death at Eliza St. Charles County, Missouri on the last day of January, of Major George Champlin Sibley, in the 66th year of his age. His father was Dr. John Sibley, Sachemite, La., and his mother was a daughter of the celebrated Divines Dr. Seewel Hopkins of Newport.

QUARTERMASTER JOHN R. STASHEFF, of the 7th Rhode Island regiment, leaves to-night to join his regiment at Newport. Mr. Stasheff has been home for a short furlough, which he had, and promptly, like a good soldier, returns to his duties.

MR. CONWAY'S LECTURE.—At Aquidneck Hall this evening, will begin promptly at a quarter past 7 o'clock, instead of half-past, as at first advertised.

Editor of the Daily News—Dear Sir:—Being in favor of an impartial administration of the law in all cases, I beg leave, through your columns, to call attention to a small matter bearing upon that subject.

During the past week or two, since we have been favored with a series of snow storms, our worthy City Marshal has been most indefatigable in warning "shavers to flee from the wrath to come" by immediately attending to the clearing of their sidewalks. This is well enough. Now at the head of the Mall in Washington Square there is a long walk, in front of the house of Mr. Sheffield, and one much travelled by the public, being crossed by the congregations of four or five different churches, as they passed yesterday and at other times to and from their respective places of worship. Now at each end of this walk are two steps, and the walk and steps are both covered in ice; the steps especially being in a dangerous condition. They are covered in solid sloping ice which in the evening particularly are no less than regular foot traps. One lady in passing from meeting on Friday evening fell from the steps on this side, narrowly escaped serious injury.

Now I ask whose duty is it to see to the clearing of this walk. If it belongs to a private individual he should have been the first man "threatened" in the city because it is the most dangerous nuisance of the kind indicated. If it belongs to the city, why, then I cannot see how the authorities can estab. the first stone until their own skirts are clear. Public or private property, whatever it may be, there is culpable negligence somewhere in this case, while some of a far less dangerous nature have been made to smell of prosecution.

WORDS FOR ONE WHO DESERVES THEM.—We are informed that in addition to the beautiful presentation sword and other articles now on exhibition at Heath's, which are intended as a present to Gen. Frank Wheaton from the non-commissioned officers and privates of the Second Rhode Island Regiment, an elegant brassed steel-hilted Regal Guard's sword, scabbard, belt, straps and sword-knot, were presented to him by the officers of the regiment. Col. Wheaton received his appointment as brigadier General of Volunteers on the battle-field at Fredericksburg, and it was very gratifying to him to know that the enlisted men of his regiment were disposed to testify their regard for their commander by immediately depositing the sum necessary for the purchase of so valuable a gift as this, now giving his acceptance.

From the E. G. Peacock.

NEW COUNTERFEIT.—Some rascal has put a new counterfeit $20 bill in circulation purporting to be a genuine issue of the Farmers Bank, Wickford. He will be a lucky dog if he can make anything out of that speculation. The institution was "sound up" several years ago, and long before it closed the genuine bills were nearly as worthless as the counterfeits now are.

We have on our table a piece of striped shirting taken from off Wall Hill, by the divers who lately explored the reef and sunken rocks in the vicinity. The shirting had been submerged in a week or two, and yet the goods are strong and the color but little faded.

Capt. Thomas Hoy of the Second Regiment R. I. Volunteers, arrived at his home in Greenwich yesterday on a short furlough. The Captain is in good spirits, and looks well. He kindly favored us with late Philadelphia and Washington papers and is soon to return.

The Temple's Institute at Kingston on Friday and Saturday last was acknowledged unanimously to be the best institute of the season. The next Institute will be held at River Point.

From the Bristol Phoenix.

REMAINTS OF SILK.—In this city, on Thursday evening, 12th inst., by Rev. Dr. Thayer, Prof. Wm. F. Way of the Naval Academy, to Miss Julia G. Phillips, daughter of Mr. Jas. G. Phillips of Newport. No Cards.

Product.

The demand for Orlons has increased. Quite a large lot has changed hands since our last report, at $1.25 per bushel, a small lot has been sold during the week at $1.50. Holders are asking $1.50. Holders are asking $1.50. Government having advertised for proposals for the delivery of 25,000 bushels in Baltimore, for the use of the army and navy, and the surplus stock on hand, has tended to stimulate the prices and caused an active demand.

It is estimated that there is about 16,000 bushels of Orlons now on hand, against 65,000 bushels at the corresponding time last year. About 16,000 bushels and 4000 bushels, have been shipped during the present week. A quantity of carots have changed hands during the week at prices not transacted. Beets are selling at 35cts per bushel. Turnips at 25 and 30cts. Turnips 60cts etc. The quantity of vegetables on hand is unusually small for this season of the year.

PERSONAL.—Adjutant Charles P. Page arrived in town on Saturday last; he resigned his commission as Adjutant of the 7th R. I. Volunteers three weeks since, being, as he says, unwilling to draw pay, while he is unable to perform the duties of a soldier.

Sergeant Nathaniel Gladding, of Co. E, 12th regiment, arrived home on Thursday evening last, having, as we learn, been discharged on account of sickness.

A COMPLIMENT FOR THE COPPERHEADS.

If there be any doubt as to the expediency of the South in regard to an independent government or the beatings of the acts of a certain class of our Southern politicians upon this matter, read and mark the following from the N. Y. Tribune:—

"Among a number of rebel letters recently found in Virginia, was one written in Richmond, acknowledging the receipt of Northern newspapers one of which was The Liberator, N. Y. & Brown's. Of this paper, as well as Copperheads in general, the writer speaks as follows:

"If there was such a paper in every county of the North, our cause would look more cheering. If the North were united the struggle would be hopeless; there would be no use of trying to cope with the giant strength which the Free States could bring to bear upon us, and we might as well give up at once as to prolong the strife to the very greater destruction of life and property. But let us see such journals continue to work for our cause, by creating a division of sentiment, and throwing impediments in the way of carrying out the necessary measures of the Lincoln Government, so long may we entertain hope and look forward to the success of that feeling so favorable to our cause."

This division is all that has saved us so far, and if saved at all the Southern Confederacy will win its salvation to such instrumentality; such papers have done more, however, for us than could possibly be done for us openly. Had we not occasionally such encouragement from the North, we should long since have seen the futility of continuing the war. Our cause looks indeed dark to us now, but as long as gleams of hope continue to come to us from such sources, let us keep up our spirits and prolong the contest, trusting to the growth of such sentiments in the different counties of Northern States to give us finally peace and an independent Government."

Mr. Conway's Lecture at Aquidneck Hall this evening, will begin promptly at a quarter past 7 o'clock, instead of half-past, as at first advertised.

NO INSURANCE ON WHALE.—The New Bedford Mercury learns that the Insurance offices of the Commissioners in Paris, to settle upon the terms of the Treaty of 1783, Dr. Franklin proposed that England should cede the whole of Canada

SATURDAY, March 14.

SENATE.

The Senate was called to order at 10 1/2 o'clock, His Excellency the Governor in the chair.

Mr. Potter, of South Kingstown, offered a motion, which was adopted, that 400 copies of the "Rhode Island Gazette" be printed for the Senators to take home. The Governor called the attention of the Senate to an application which had been made to him this morning for the pardon of William Hanley, a convict in the State Prison, who was committed for murder some fourteen or fifteen years since.

The Senate voted to listen to Ex-Agency General Blister of Bristol, upon the subject, and that gentleman appeared before the Senate and gave the details of the conviction of Hanley as far as he recollects them.

Attorney General Burgess also made a statement of fact that had come under his knowledge in relation to this case.

The Governor stated that in his opinion this was one of those cases where the pardoning power might be safely exercised.

Motion of Mr. Potter the Senate advised and consented to the pardon of the said Hanley by the Executive, the same to take effect on the 1st of May next.

House.

The House met at twenty minutes to eleven o'clock, Hon. Francis W. Miller in the chair.

Mr. Mountifield, reported back the report of the committee to examine the waters of Narragansett Bay, and recommended indefinite postponement.

Mr. Parsons of Providence, moved that the committee be discharged and the report be continued to the May session. Passed.

The petitions of Peter A. Simont, Thomas Carr and others, (from the Senate,) were in motion of Mr. Darling of North Providence, continued to the May session.

Mr. Parsons of Providence, moved that the committee be discharged and the report be continued to the May session. Passed.

PURE BOURBON WHISKY.

BOTTLED BY

EDOLPHO WOLFE.

TO THE PUBLIC.
Having been collected by the public, Druggists, Grocers, and private families to add to my business, I have been doing with my "Sobriquet Skimp," to sell it with my skill, and add my certificate to the label of my modesty. I am happy to say that, after a great deal of difficulty, I have concluded an arrangement with two of the largest and oldest distillers in Kentucky for a regular supply.

The Whisky will be put up in quart bottles, and packed in cases of one dozen each.

Praying for the following a careful and attention-able period.

I remain yours, &c,

EDOLPHO WOLFE,

New York, January 10, 1833.

EDOLPHO WOLFE, Esq., 21 Beaver-st., New York.

Dear Sir: The want of Pure Spirits for Medicinal purposes has been felt by the profession, and thousands of lives have been sacrificed by the use of adulterated articles.

We have tested the Bourbon Whisky which you sent us, and consider it justly entitled to the high reparation you claim for it.

We would recommend you to appoint some of the respectable Apothecaries in different parts of the United States Agents for the sale of your Bourbon Whisky, where the profession can obtain the same, when needed for medicinal purposes.

Wishing you success in your new enterprise.

We remain your obedient servant,
